Final Presentation Structure

Final Presentation Structure

The final presentation is an 8 to 10 minute long, conference-style presentation

- This is a difficult length, as it is not enough time to convey everything
- Instead, focus on the main story, overview of your approach, and the key results

Structure: Replication/Extension

What to Include:

- Motivation
- Statement of Replicated Paper
 - 991: statement of extensions
- Overview of their Replication Package
- Steps taken to replicate
 - Any translation from other languages
 - Comment on ease of replicability or if you ran into any issues/errors
- 991: Discussion of extension results, implication for paper
- Conclusion

Structure: Acquisition

What to Include:

- Motivation
- Statement of Data Source
- Overview of Necessary Approach
 - API: description of endpoints
 - Static/Dynamic: outline of workflow
- Discussion of any challenges encountered
- Summary of compiled dataset
- Conclusion

Structure: Analysis

What to Include:

- Motivation
- Research Question(s)
- Summary of Data Sources
- Empirical Strategy
- Results
- Conclusion/Next Steps

Keep it Short

My recommendation: one slide per minute!

- One slide each for motivation/conclusion/research statement
- Acquisition: more than one for the workflow
- Analysis: more than one for empirical strategy/results
- Replication/Extension: more than one for steps taken/results

Scheduled Times

I put presenters + discussants in back-to-back half hour windows.

If you have a conflict with the above scheduled time such that you absolutely can't make that half hour window, then find another pair to switch with and then confirm the switch with me.

Replication Packages

Remember that replication packages must be submitted to myself and your discussant by end of day Sunday, April 20.

- Late submissions on replication packages will not receive points (7% of final grade)

You can either

1. Create a GitHub Repository and share it that way, or
2. Email a (link to a) zip folder containing all replication materials
